fauna. The area is dominated by open canopies of mixed forest, predominantly teak and open grassy patches. No wonder it boasts the highest density of herbivores in any Indian park including chital (spotted deer) and sambar favourite prey of the mighty tiger. Kanha Highlights

Kanha National Park is considered one of the finest protected wildlife areas in the world designed to save two endangered species, tiger and barasingha, but don't let that take away from the other 40+ species of mammals found in the park that will make this an unforgettable experience. Expect to see leopard and wild dog alongside tigers, gaur and chital, porcupine and mongoose and let's not forget the scavengers like hyena and jackal. With all this fantastic wildlife to see you'll never want to leave.
